117TH CONGRESS 2D SESSION

H. R. 7976

To amend the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 to eliminate the use of valid court orders to secure lockup of status offenders, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

June 8, 2022

Mr. CÁRDENAS introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor

A BILL

To amend the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 to eliminate the use of valid court orders to secure lockup of status offenders, and for other purposes.

- 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
- 2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
- 3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
- 4 This Act may be cited as the "Prohibiting Detention
- 5 of Youth Status Offenders Act of 2022".
- 6 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.
- 7 Congress finds the following:

- 1 (1) Under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency
 2 Prevention Act of 1974 (34 U.S.C. 11101 et seq.),
 3 Congress recognized the need to set clear standards
 4 and protect juveniles across the United States by,
 5 among other things, providing that States should
 6 not place youth in secure detention for status of7 fenses, which are offenses that would not be criminal
 8 offenses if committed by an adult.
 - (2) In 1980, Congress amended the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (34 U.S.C. 11101 et seq.) to create an exception that permits judges to place a youth in secure detention if the youth violates a valid court order (referred to in this section as "the VCO exception"). The VCO exception has led to thousands of youth being placed in secure detention for noncriminal status offenses.
 - (3) Placing a child charged with a noncriminal status offense in secure confinement with children who have been accused of serious criminal offenses can expose the child to negative influences and behaviors that could contribute to that child returning into the status offense system or the delinquency system.
 - (4) The 5 most common juvenile status offenses include skipping school, drinking while underage, running away from home, violating curfew, and acting out.

(5) In 2019—

- (A) 11 percent of formally processed juvenile court cases were for a status offense; and
- (B) although most petitioned status offense cases involved White youth (61 percent), Black youth and American Indian and Alaska Native youth were overrepresented among petitioned status offenses cases relative to their population size.
- (6) Girls are more often sent to the justice system for less serious offenses, such as status offenses, than boys. In 2013, the female share of formally processed status offense cases (43 percent) was greater than the share of female delinquency cases (27 percent).
- (7) Girls often engage in status offense behaviors in response to abuse or trauma and may, for example, run away to escape abuse at home or in a foster care placement.
- (8) Anyone under the age of majority, which, in most States, is the age of 18, is subject to status offense charges, but teenagers between the ages of 14 and 17 comprise most status offense cases.

- 1 (9) Most youth who engage in status and other 2 minor offenses never progress to more serious behav-3 ior and will age out of the behavior without court 4 intervention.
 - (10) Since 1980, more than half of States have recognized the dangers of placing youth in secure detention for noncriminal status offenses and have stopped using the VCO exception.
 - (11) While the number of status offenses petitioned in courts decreased by 53 percent between 2005 to 2019, during 2019, there were still approximately 4,200 instances of a youth being detained in response to a status offense.
 - (12) Congress recognized the need to reform the VCO exception under the Juvenile Justice Reform Act of 2018 (115–385; 132 Stat. 5123), which, among other things, limited the time that a juvenile could be detained under a VCO exception to not more than 7 days.
 - (13) Congress must now act to eliminate the VCO exception and fully return to the original intent of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (34 U.S.C. 11101 et seq.), which originally provided that no youth should be held in secure detention for a noncriminal status offense.

SEC. 3. DEINSTITUTIONALIZATION OF STATUS OFFENDERS. 2 Section 223 of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency 3 Prevention Act of 1974 (34 U.S.C. 11133) is amended— 4 (1) in subsection (a)— 5 (A) in paragraph (11)(A)(i)(III), by insert-6 ing "a runaway" before "held"; and (B) in paragraph (23)— 7 8 (i) in subparagraph (C)(iii)— 9 (I) in subclause (I)(dd), by striking "7" and inserting "3"; and 10 11 (II) in subclause (II), by striking "and" at the end: 12 13 (ii) in subparagraph (D)— (I) by striking "7" and inserting 14 "3"; and 15 (II) by adding "and" at the end; 16 17 and 18 (iii) by inserting after subparagraph 19 (D) the following: "(E) the juvenile may only be held in a se-20 21 cure detention facility or secure correctional fa-22 cility if the detention— "(i) is pursuant to a court order de-23 24 scribed in subparagraph (C)(iii) and the 25 other conditions set forth in subparagraph 26 (C) are satisfied; and

10	a juvenile status offender in a secure detention facil-
11	ity or secure correctional facility.
12	"(2) Extension.—A State that can dem-
13	onstrate hardship, as determined by the Adminis-
14	trator, may submit to the Administrator an applica-
15	tion for a single 1-year extension of the 1-year pe-
16	riod described in paragraph (1) to comply with para-
17	graph (1), which shall describe—
18	"(A) the measurable progress and good ef-
19	fort in the State to reduce the number of juve-
20	nile status offenders who are placed in a secure
21	detention facility or correctional facility pursu-
22	ant to a court order described in subsection
23	(a)(23)(C)(iii); and

1	"(B) a plan to comply with the require-
2	ment described in paragraph (1) not later than
3	1 year after the date the extension is granted.".
